

BOMB MAKERS MUST SELECT OWN LAWYERS

Claims of Rival Attorneys
Cause Judge to Postpone Talk With Men.

THE CASE IS SET FOR TO-MORROW

Several lawyers have appeared claiming to represent the two youthful bomb makers, Carmine Carbone and Frank Marino, charged with placing a bomb in St. Patrick's Cathedral, that Judge Swann in General Sessions changed his plan to have a talk with them yesterday and the whole matter of counsel will be threshed out in open court to-morrow morning.

When the defendants appeared in court last Wednesday afternoon they apparently wanted to plead guilty and Judge Swann said he would like to talk to the men to see what should be done in their behalf. He set yesterday morning as the time for the conference.

At noon a half dozen lawyers had appeared in the case. They were Francis J. Green, Simon A. Pollock, William C. Kier, former Judge John Palmeri, Samuel Stark and Isidor E. Schlesinger. Green, Pollock and Palmeri talked with the prisoners yesterday, and later Palmeri said he had been brought into the case through Carlo Carbone, a brother of Carmine. He said he would eventually try the case, although he would not appear in court to-morrow.

Judge Swann says he will do nothing further until the defendants in open court pick out the lawyers they want to defend them. After this formality and overtures are made to enter a plea of guilty, then the court will go into the details of the case with the District Attorney.

Judge Issues Statement.

District Attorney Perkins saw Judge Swann yesterday. Mr. Palmeri also talked with him. Later Judge Swann issued this statement:

"The case of Frank R. Marino and Carmine Carbone is very much confused by the conflicting claims of various counsel, each claiming to represent the defendants, some claiming to have been retained directly by the defendants themselves, others by friends of the defendants and others by the defendants' families. I insisted that I would not consider any plea suggested by anyone until it was decided on Monday in open court by the defendants themselves as to whom they wanted to act as their attorneys."

"From the voluntary statements of both defendants in open court on Wednesday last, in which they told of their participation in the alleged offense, it was suggested that the defendants be given an opportunity to state fully and completely the facts in the case as they claim them to be in order that the question of what plea of guilty could be accepted."

"This morning the opinions of the various counsel were so conflicting as to whether or not the defendants wished to tender a plea of guilty that I put the whole matter over until Monday morning at 10 o'clock in Court I will call upon the defendants to indicate in open court whom they desire to act as their attorneys, and then if they wish to tender a plea of guilty I shall hear the defendants themselves and their attorneys on the facts as the defendants claim them to be, and if they prefer to interpose a plea of not guilty I will place the case upon the calendar to come up in its proper time for trial."

Blames Police Spy.

Judge Palmeri insists that the two boys were led into the crime for which they now stand indicted.

"From information now in my hands," said he, "I think the young policeman responsible for this condition. Morally this is a good defense. Legally it is not a defense. No doubt many of the defendants think they made up the bomb were bought by the defendants. It is also true that the policeman bought some of the materials used. This is not a legal defense, but it is one that a jury might well refuse to convict on."

Mr. Green went a step further and said that he would ask that Polignani be indicted for his participation in the making of the bomb. He insists that the policeman stimulated the acts of these defendants, even going so far as to lure them away from their homes. Mr. Green said he did not intend to ask for a change of venue, believing that he can get a fair trial in this city. A demurrer to the indictments will be filed by counsel after the pleas have been entered.

Mr. Pollock in discussing his side of the defense said that there would be no plea of guilty by the defendants. "When," said he, "one of the defendants did not go to trial on the 'frameup' defense. The crime was in fact, and was worked out by the policeman. I doubt if any jury will convict them."

PLOT ON WAR NEWS CHARGED.

German Spy Philadelphia Papers Agree to Favor Allies.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—German organizations here are circulating a story that some Philadelphia newspapers have agreed to censor their German war news in favor of the Allies. An anonymous letter was received by E. W. Liedtke, a well-known newspaper editor in Philadelphia, in which was enclosed another letter addressed to E. A. Van Valkenburg, editor of the North American. The last named letter bore the signature "Ludwig" and the impression was given out that it was written by H. H. Ludington, vice-president of the Public Ledger Company.

Mr. Ludington denied authorship of the missive in which Mr. Van Valkenburg is requested to use his influence with Charles H. Houston of the Ledger, and "persuade him not to make an assessment of himself by his pro-Alliedism."

Rush Terminal Gives Dinner.

One hundred and ten men of the operating force of the Rush Terminal Company attended the monthly banquet given by the company last night. Irving H. Rush, president, was unable to be present, but sent flowers. R. G. Simonds, vice-president and treasurer, gave a talk, followed by a general discussion.

LADY GODIVA MARATHON AT BALL OF THE KIT-KATS

Old Jack Fryer, at 7 A. M., Says New York Never Saw
Such an Exhibition of Human Form Divine—
Eve Seen on a Raft.

There undoubtedly is the mercy of Allah the Compassionate, who cherishes all humans, the janitor of the Palm Garden hummed himself over the furnace early yesterday morning. Otherwise no less than 366 girls who attended the annual ball of the Kit-Kat Club for the purpose of proving that wearing clothes is a foolish affliction and slantly causes the pores to close up would have frozen.

Old Jack Fryer of Wall street and upper Broadway, who has finished for going on sixty years wherever beauty and light quivers of music were to be found, placed himself on record at 7 A. M., just as the Kit-Kat Grotto was really getting to be a regular party, with the statement that New York had never witnessed such an exhibition of the human form divine. At that hour old Mr. Fryer had developed eye strain from a natural effort not to miss anything and complained of a slight headache.

The old gentleman instantly revived, however, when Charles Falls and Jack Bryant, two of our most rising young illustrators, approached him with the deference due his advanced age and wide experience and begged him to join them as a member of the committee to conduct the Lady Godiva Marathon.

Appears as Fried Egg.

It may be mentioned in passing that Charles Falls attended the ball as a fried egg and Mr. Bryant appeared as a Hindu noble. Old Mr. Fryer exhibited the costume of a court jester at the time of Charles the Bold.

It was difficult to arrange a carriage because the draughts in the Palm Garden were skittish and treacherous and nobody wanted to risk the chance of a girl catching a cold that might be serious and cause such illness as would keep her at home and deprive her of employment necessary for the advancement of art. So a course was finally laid out straight up and down the ballroom floor. The reporter for THE SUN did not see the race because he was very busy arranging and systematizing his notes, but according to the Field Egg, the Hindu Noble and the Court Jester it was considerable contest. Be that as it may, one must not get the idea that the annual frolic of the Kit-Kats is solely for even largely for the purpose of showing how much the ladies and gentlemen one sees in the pages of Mr. Bullfinch's well known mythological work had it on us in the way of comfortable dullness. Girls will be girls, and when they are artists models and get in the habit of shedding garments blithely and easily the Kit-Kats can't be blamed.

The real purpose of the annual ball is to bring together the large company of young artists in New York who have made up their minds that some day every one of them will be bigger men than William M. Chase or Sargent or Dana Gibson; that and to raise funds to keep the Kit-Kat Club purring on a prosperous career.

There never has been a hall big enough to hold the people that are permitted to attend, and it would take all of Madison Square Garden to contain all of the people who would like to attend. One can't play with the Kit-Kats merely by paying a ticket as one buys a ticket for the theatre. One must be known and be somewhat of an artist or a star of little ray. There were 800 persons, elbow to elbow and ankle to ankle, in the Palm Garden in East

Eighty-eight street last night, and at least 1,000 persons tried to get tickets

The Grotto (the Kit-Kats always have interesting and distinctive titles for their annual frolic) was the "Shelter" (last year) began theoretically at 10 P. M., but actually the birds didn't begin to sing and hearts grow glad until the young moon was no longer a babe in the arms of Time.

As nearly as one can place the beginning of real gaiety it was about 2 A. M., at which moment Jack Bryant the illustrator, and Jimmy Preston, also an illustrator and famous as the worst pool player the world ever saw, found themselves drifted near Jane Dale, a heroine of the movies.

Mr. Bryant then and there bet Mr. Preston $10 that if they could get Miss Dale's permission to lift her in the air Mr. Bryant could hold up his side of Miss Dale longer than Mr. Preston could support his side of Miss Dale. Such in brief were the terms of the wager. The difficulty was to get Miss Dale's consent.

Cause of Envy.

After diplomatic persuasion by old Mr. Fryer, Roy Conger and Samfany Meaghe Miss Dale reluctantly, and rather than crab the party, permitted the youths to lift her. Five minutes 400 persons were massed around the trio. They didn't press in to admire Jack Bryant's or Jimmy Preston's manly strength, but because Miss Dale looks exactly as Anna Held looked in the year 1897, and if one remembers how Anna Held looked in 1897 one doesn't have to know any more.

Anyway they kept at it, neither proud youth shrinking from the lovely burden. Minutes passed. Marmara and co-explains arose from the audience. Even the word "stings" was flung at the Atlas act. Offers to substitute were freely made. Who would have won the bet will never be known because a lady with whom Jack Bryant had a dance and who seemed to be very, very impetuous, exploded through the throng and to-morrow the act.

So it went, one thing after another, until it was much too late to go to the roof, as many had planned in the exuberance of the early evening, to see the sun rise. But the best show of all was the infinite variety of costumes. From artists at club play you have a right to expect much, and the artists of the Kit-Kat Club never disappoint their guests.

The spirit of the costuming was grotesque—Charley Falls as a fried egg, "Eve on a Raft," for example, or the two artists' models who came as "Twins," with a pillow strapped to the back of each girl's head and a small mattress at her back, or Fannasmy Mazaraki, the mathematician, as "Early Morning in a Trench of the Allies." All the rainbows that ever arched the sky seemed to be at play under the gleaming lights and beer was five cents a glass.

Club's Best Show.

Mark that fact, gentle reader, and give the Kit-Kats due credit, for if there is any other masquerade ball in New York where champagne is taboo and the rigidity of waiters is firmly repressed and never a fight takes place among 800 persons at hard merry-making for seven hours, it does not occur to memory. The Kit-Kats are gay, but they have no love for sheer vulgarity or rowdiness.

The Kit-Kat entertainment this year, a matinee as usual, was staged at 2 A. M. and depicted the nightmare of one who had supped too liberally on ale and rabbits. Almost 100 of the members paraded and paraded, representing such grotesque and amazing characters as appear only in nightmares.

President Charles W. Shannon of the Kit-Kats, Robert Henry, Will Gladden, Arthur Brown and Jack Bryant, among the veterans of the club, agreed that, take it any way you please, the 1915 ball was the best show the club ever gave.

FOUR SHOT BY A PRISONER.

One Policeman Killed, Three Others Wounded in Wilmington.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 6.—Patrolman Francis X. Tierney was shot and instantly killed. Patrolmen Sharpless and McDannell, perhaps fatally wounded, and James Scott slightly injured by bullets from the revolver of a foreigner at noon to-day.

Sharpless had attempted to arrest the man, who was suspected of having several stolen watches in his possession. After a running pistol fight he was arrested several blocks away in a stable yard by Police Sergeant Massey and Patrolman McDannell, but before being placed under arrest he fired the remaining bullets from his weapon at the officers.

One of these bullets found a mark a fraction of an inch above McDannell's heart.

WIFE SLAYER BRINGS SUIT.

Former Queens County Coroner Claims Share of Estate.

Dr. Samuel R. Guy, a former Coroner of Queens county, who was released on parole last summer after serving seven and one-half years of a fifteen year sentence for shooting to death his wife, Mrs. Lillian Mott Guy, at their home in Far Rockaway, is now seeking to obtain a share of her estate.

The estate consists of $10,000 in real estate and about $10,000 in personal property. Following his conviction this estate passed to his son, Harold M. Guy. Dr. Guy claims one-third of the personal estate and a life interest in the real estate.

As the jury found him guilty of manslaughter it is contended that the shooting of his wife was without premeditation and that the decisions of the courts in regard to willful murder do not apply to his case and that he is entitled to a share of his dead wife's estate.

OCTOGENARIAN DIES IN FIRE.

Aged Wife of William Dwyer of Fort Plain Falls in Residence.

FORT PLAIN, N. Y., March 6.—William Dwyer, 80 years old, a veteran of the civil war, was suffocated in a fire that destroyed his home here to-day.

Mr. Dwyer was almost helpless from a long illness and his wife, who also is very old, was unable to get him from the burning building in time to save his life.
